BA 2000 is the capstone course for students specializing in marketing in their final semester in Business Administration at Grande Prairie Regional College. As the name of the course suggests, the course includes an in-depth look at ethical and policy related matters, as well as globalization theory and issues. Through an intense "Readers' Response" journaling curriculum and teaching practice, students are introduced to critical and creative thinking and the many problems/uncertainties/complexities that mark the terrain of living and working in an age of globalization. As well, the course also attempts to integrate theory and practice by involving students in a major practical project – the planning and execution of the annual Department-wide Business Conference.

Objectives:

- To develop critical/creative thinking skills
- To enhance research/observation skills
- To gain an appreciation of ethical implications of business policy
- To garner an appreciation of globalization processes
- To improve writing skills
- To serve as a capstone marketing experience integrating knowledge from other courses and disciplines
- To improve presentation and facilitation skills
- To experience a major project involving "real life" risks and opportunities
- To enhance project management skills
- To enhance team skills
- To serve the Department, College, and Community through a major project

Examinations:

There is one final examination for this course.

Student Responsibilities:

The Academic Journal

A major portion of the mark in BA2000 is based on entries in an academic journal. The entries will be due weekly during the Thursday class – focused on the seminar topic covered in the previous week. Students are expected to explore other perspectives of the issues explored through research. Because of the process involved, journal entries will not be accepted late. The entries should be word processed – about 750 words as a minimum length. One of the early classes in the semester will deal specifically with journal writing and critical thinking to assist you in your journal writing.

The GPRC Business Conference

Students in BA2000 plan, organize, and present the GPRC Business Conference on March 21st. This conference is attended by all GPRC Business Administration, Commerce, and Hospitality and Tourism students as well as many Fitness Leadership students and student from area high schools. The project includes organizing the day, a meal for all attendees, breakout sessions, and presentations in the theatre including a keynote speaker .

Course Policies

It is critical and crucial that you attend each planning meeting with your team in reference to the Business Conference. And, it is equally critical that you attend each of the seminar presentations because it will be impossible to write a response to something you have not heard. Should you miss a class, I will ask you to sign an attendance contract. Subsequent absences may result in your withdrawal from the course.

It is expected that class lab hours will be dedicated toward committee work on the Business Conference.

Class records will be maintained until the beginning of the fall semester. These records will then be destroyed in a secure manner. Any unclaimed student paper or assignments will be destroyed within 30 days of the last class. Selected student projects may be kept and used for a variety of purposes – provided that consent has been granted by the student(s) involved.
